Centennial Edition 1870—1970

Published by
The students of
Assumption College School
Windsor, Ontario.

We dedicate this 1970 Centennial Edition of the Assumption College School Crusader to the angel of Aquarius, and to his age, and to us, the Assumption community, who are partakers in this age of peace, joy, understanding, and love.

1870 Centennial Edition 1970

The first attempt of establishing a school at Sandwich is to be credited to Father Crevier, who came to Assumption Parish as a curate in 1816. He established a school for higher education in which he had young men under his care. This attempt failed as did so many other attempts to found an institution for higher learning both for boys and girls.

When Bishop Powers was appointed to the newly-erected See of Toronto, he called a Synod. Among the matters brought up on that occasion was the project of founding a college at Sandwich which was to take care of the Indian Missions. It was too much to expect the secular clergy to undertake the matter, so the Bishop wrote to the Jesuits to help him found a new college.

So in 1843, Father Pierre Point and seven companions came to look after the needs of the Huron Indians and the French Canadians of the whole district. Appalled by the ignorance in his area, and recognizing the importance of secondary education, Father Point erected a high school for boys on the parish grounds in 1857. Thus, it was that Assumption College was founded by the Jesuits in 1857. The curriculum of Le college de l'Assomption consisted of Preparatory, Commercial and Classical Courses. The staff included laymen teaching under the direction of the Jesuit Fathers. During its early years instruction was given in the French language.

Fr. D. O'Connor

Fr. Cushing

Mr. T. Girardot

When the first Bishop of London decided to remove his See to Sandwich in 1859, the Jesuits left amid the regrets of the entire district. The school fell upon days of extreme adversity. Mr. Theodule Girardot, a zealous educator, came and saved it and conducted it for five years. At the end of this period, Mr. Girardot began to feel unqualified to guide a student body largely preparing for the priesthood. Mr. Girardot recommended that the Bishop approach the Basilians to see whether they would assume the administration of the college.

So, in September, 1870, the priests of the Congregation of St. Basil assumed the direction of the college work under the superiorship of Father Dennis O'Connor. Fifty-eight students were enrolled the first year. In the early years, the school was very poorly furnished and many hardships were endured. But due to the courageous staff and devoted students, the school steadily grew. Larger, adequate and comfortable accommodations were built, so that in 1890 (the year that Father O'Connor left to become Bishop of London) the College had expanded three times its original dimensions.

Under Father D. Cushing (president of the College 1890-1901) and Father Robert McBrady (president 1901-1907) the College experienced hardships due to a business depression. Under Father McBrady, the specialist system was introduced (a teacher taught just one subject). This caused the merits of the College to be increased and thus enrollment also increased.

With the administration of Father Francis Forster (president 1907-1919) and Father Joseph Muckle (president 1919-1922) a new generation of Basilians took over and the pioneering age may be said to have passed. The College grew in academic standards and new buildings were added. It began to enjoy the rights and assumed the obligations common to all the affiliated Colleges of the University of Western Ontario. Assumption emerged as a liberal arts college for the young men and extended the benefits of affiliation with the University to the young women of the area. Vocational habits changed so that Assumption was no longer a major "producer" of priests. Through its extension courses and thus "secularization", total enrollment increased. By 1944, total enrollment including College, High School, Night School, and Summer School reached 1,100.

As a few years passed, it became inevitable that the building of a new school at a new site would have to take place. The University was expanding and they needed more space. As the high school was sharing the facilities with the University, it was decided that the High School should be the one to move. Choosing a site was not a problem because a strip of land bordering Huron Line from the Detroit River to Tecumseh Road belonged to the Basilians since it had previously been given to them by Chief Turtle. Not too many obstacles were encountered since both the space problem and the new trends in education made it possible to get a new building almost immediately. So under the direction of such people as Fathers E. Lebel, R. Cullen, F. O'Neil, R. Wood, and F. Brown, this dream became a reality and in 1955 the new Assumption High School was built by Eastern Construction Company of Windsor.

In September, 1955, the front section of the school (including classrooms, library, offices, and cafeteria) was completed. Grades nine and ten came here first. Grades eleven, twelve, and thirteen were still taught at the University. The priests and resident students of nine and ten used to walk everyday from the University to the high school. In September of 1956, the gymnasium, and the second wing of classrooms (including both the upstairs and middle floors were completed. The whole high school was now taught at the new site. In December 1957, the priests' residence and the chapel were completed. In September 1958, the boarders' residence was finally completed. The recreation hall came later. The entire high school was now permanently established at the new site.

After this, all Assumption had to do was to continue to change to keep in with the times. And that it did. In the early sixties a lay board was introduced into the high school. And the school continued to change till present day and today it is still changing in an effort to keep up with the modern trends of education. For example, in 1969-1970 the system of individual scheduling was introduced and in 1970-1971 the credit system will be put into effect.

Fr. R. Wood

Having just reviewed the history of this school which is so deeply entrenched in tradition, we are confronted with the products of the institution. They range from bankers, accountants and labourers to clergy. This history in itself is a subtle evaluation of the Assumption of the past. But we of today, must evaluate, as best as we can, the all important "now".

Today, Sodalities and other strictly religious organizations have disappeared. All of these organizations were indicative of the religious feeling of the school at a time. In looking back, we appreciate and realize that the Christian message remains within the student body but in a different way. It is present in the moving sense of community which pervades the school. This spirit of community exists in an intangible sense and in a tangible sense such as: the Can Drive and the Missions. This intangible and tangible reality would not be possible without the working of some concept of God, some peace in the present, some hope in the future. Where as, we are convinced that these ideas did exist in a much more structural and consequently tangible Assumption of one hundred years ago, they almost definitely do exist today in a more unstructured and intangible sense. It does not matter that there was such a conformity compelling structure or that there is less of an institution now. But it does matter that, for as long as a man of Assumption is able to relate to another person, because of something he has learned through his schooling, he shall be an evaluation onto himself, a light in the darkness, the fulfillment of Assumption's aims and a living testimony of the all-important and universal message of Aquarius: peace, joy, understanding, and love.
